Mental-emotional health and physical health affect each other. People with physical health problems often experience depression that affects their general well-being. But what is mental or emotional health? Mental wellness, or good mental health, “is feeling, thinking, and interacting in ways that help you enjoy life and deal effectively with difficult situations”. Examining healthy lifestyle plays is an important role in developing mental-emotional health.

Mental health problems can be the result of many different kinds of experiences in a person’s life, from early childhood to later life. These life experiences may relate to a person’s environment or some other factors. People may or may not have control over these factors, but each of us must learn to deal with our own feelings and emotions from day to day. All life experiences, whether positive or negative, are character building. The key is to develop skills for controlling and managing our feelings and emotions and to learn from all experiences. The following can help us to feel better:

- Get enough rest and sleep.
- Eat a well-balanced diet.
- Avoid caffeine, alcohol, smoking, or other drugs.
- Participate in physical activities.
- Do something that is enjoyable or relaxing (e.g., go to a funny movie, take a walk for enjoyment, listen to music, read a good book, talk to a friend, engage in an activity that is safe and appealing).
