K. Read the following paragraph and then answer its questions.(2)

Today, there are about 360 million people with hearing problems which makes up over 5% of the world's population. About 70 million deaf people use sign language as their first language. They use sign language to meet their needs. Sign language varies from country to country. For example, American sign language differs from British sign language. Besides, each sign language has its own grammar. For example, when a person is asking questions about who, where, what, why and when, the eyebrows go down. If the questions are about yes/no questions, the eyebrows go up. Generally, there are two hundred sign languages in use around the world. In 1620, Juan Pablo, the Spanish writer, published the first book that taught sign language to the deaf.
