Cell Phone Etiquette

Dear Sunday Globe,

You did an excellent job explaining the good points of cell phones: they're convenient, we feel safer always being able to call someone; and they are very helpful in (2)..... . On the other hand, you didn't talk about their bad points at all. I hope you'll let me give your readers some (3)..... on cell phone etiquette.

The first point I'd like to address is when (4)..... your phone. It's polite to switch off your phone or turn off the sound when you're in class or in a meeting. If you get an important call, you should ask for permission to leave the room and then don't talk for too long. Furthermore, for conversations that need more time, it is best to ask the person to (5)..... at a more convenient time. Cell phones can also cause you to neglect the people you are with. I find it really annoying when my friends constantly check their (6)..... on their phone. In fact, I want to tell them to turn off the cell phone and enjoy my company!

Another point that needs to be made has to do with personal space. I think it is very (7)..... to make calls in small spaces or crowded rooms. This makes others uncomfortable and forces them to listen to your personal (8)..... . Additionally, it disturbs other face-to-face conversations; that's why I never use my cell phone within a few meters of other people except in emergencies.

Lastly, I would like readers to pay attention to the (9)..... of using your phone while doing something else. For instance, driving and texting is a bad combination. Likewise, using your phone or texting when walking can make you (10)..... . You don't want to get hit by a car. Pay attention to where you're going!

Sincerely, Amber Jala

Passage 2

J: Read the passage and answer the questions. (3)

Pablo Picasso was a famous Spanish artist. To most, he is known simply as "Picasso." He was born on October 25th, 1881, and died on April 8, 1973. Pablo's father was a drawing teacher, and he encouraged his son's artistic ability. When Pablo was ten years old, the family moved to Barcelona, Spain, where Pablo took an exam to enter a famous and prestigious art school, called La Llonga. The exam was supposed to take one month, but Pablo finished it in one day!

He later moved to Paris, where he worked as an artist creating and exhibiting his drawings. During this time, he created his famous "Blue Period" works. They were called this because of their devotion to the color, and because they were quite somber in nature. In 1907, Picasso painted "Les Demoiselles d'Avignon," which is known to have been the first painting in the "modern art" movement. Artists from all over the world travelled to see this painting. Picasso created cubism, with a colleague named George Braque.

In the 1920s, Picasso continued his work by creating theatre sets. His work during this period was considered neo-classical, modern, surreal, and cubist. In 1937, there was a terrible bombing in a small Spanish town called Guernica. Picasso reacted by creating one of his most famous murals, a masterpiece named after the town of Guernica.

Picasso then moved on to print making and lithography. He was never content to use a medium the way it was traditionally used, and came up with many inventive new ways to create art. He worked on etchings, engravings, and worked on many other techniques. Just before his 87th birthday, he completed a series called the "347 Series," in which he created three hundred and forty seven pieces of etching and engraving work – between March and October!

One of the most interesting things about Picasso is that he was the first artist to be famous during his own lifetime. He was quite a celebrity, and is considered one of the most important artists of the twentieth century.

38. It took Picasso one month to take the art school exam. TRUE  FALSE

39. Like many other artists, Pablo became famous after his death. TRUE  FALSE

40. What was Picasso's reaction when a small town in Spain was bombed?

41. What was the name of Pablo's painting that began the "modern art movement," and in what year did he create it?
